THE Phoenix Herald says that the thermometer only marked 94 degrees there when it ranged at 110 to 118 at other points. The editor has evidently had a chill from the effects of this cold wave for he says:

ADVERTISING PAYS.

A Fact Established Many Hundreds of Years Ago.

Means of Announcing Wares Before the Day of the New-paper-The Continent at and English Bed-Men-Modern Advertising Enterprise

The wise in the business world have for many ages availed themselves of the science of advertising, says the Washington Star. One of the most ancient modes of attracting public patronage was by means of public criers long before the age of printing. The mediaval criers used to carry a horn with which to fix the attention of the people when about to make a proclamation or publication. They formed a well ortwelfth century. Under a charter from Louis VII. they were entitled to a penny for every time they blew their horns, and could force themselves upon tavernkeepers to cry their wares under a gen-eral statute. They at a very early period formed themselves into a corporation, and in 1258 obtained from Philip Augustus favorable statutes of the most

In England the public criers appear to have been a National institution at an early period. They cried all kinds Big coal veins have been found near of goods, and were sworn to tell "truly the line of the A. and P. road in the and well to the best of their ability and power." After awhile the bell-man or town crier was appointed for the benefit bitumious and will prove a valuable the country towns of Great Britain, and even in London, there are still bell-men and parish criers, though their offices are little more than sinecures. The provincial crier's duties are of the most varied description, and relate to objects lost or found, sales by public auction or private contract, weddings, christenings or funerals.

But the bell-man as a means of advertising has seen his last days. Nearly three-quarters of a century ago in England wagons were driven through the streets surmounted by revolving turrets, on which were painted flaming announcements of coming events, and menon horseback rode up and down the principal thoroughfares with great billboards strapped on either side of them

The first regular newspaper, The Certain News of This Present Week, published in London in 1622, contained no portance. The first American daily journal, the Independent Garette, of New York, 1787, in its second year con tained thirty-four advertisements. From that time on the growth of American advertising developed the fact that ex-

The demand for systematic advertiseagencies are too slow for great modern bazars, who change their advertisements almost daily. They employ an advernewspapers. Besides the advertising agencies there are now "engraving companies" devoted entirely to furnishing pictorial cuts for advertisements "Printer's ink," used as synonymous with advertising, has become recognized as an essential to success in the comranks as an artist and commands a corresponding salary. It is not merely in the enumeration of wares and goods that suggestions.

A RUSSIAN ROMANCE.

A Widower Refuses to P rt with the Body of H.s Wife.

A romantic story, strange if true, is published, says Gilignani, of a wealthy Russian gentleman living in his own house on the banks of the Seine, who, for the last ten years, has kept in a box at reasonable rates during the winter his young wife. She was murdered a few days after marriage, and her sor rowing husband obtained the Czar's permission to take her body away with him. The discovery was made by the prying propensities of the cook left in charge of the house during the tempo rary absence of her master. There is a curious side to the story, which, if true, will need explanation. How was it that a police commissary, being informed of the discovery of a corpse in the house of a rich foreigner, should have left it there and simply written to the owner of the house for information? Those gentlemen do not generally hesitate about making even foreible entries into houses in which they even suspect there is something they ought to know, see or take possession of. The law of Francforbids absolutely the keeping of a dea body in any place but a cemetery. The Russian gentleman hopes to obtain special permission from high quarters to re main the custodian of his beloved relie If not he threatens to leave the coun try rather than part with it.

a sluggish liver. In either case, an aperient is needed. Ayer's Pills, the mildest and most reliable cathartic in use, correct all irregularities of the stomach, liver, and bowels, and, in a brief time, relieve the most distressing headache. These pills are highly recommended by the profession, and the demand for them is universal. "I have been afflicted, for years, with headache and indigestion, and though I spent nearly a fortune in medicines, I never found any relief until I began to take Ayer's Pills. Six bottles of these Pills completely cured me."—Benjamin Harper, Plymouth, Montserrat, W. I.

Pills are the most efficient medicine I even used."—Robert K. James, Dorchester, Mass. "For years I was subject to constipation and nervous headache, caused by derange-ment of the liver. After taking various rem-edies, I have become convinced that Ayer's Pilis are the best. They never fall to relieve my billious attacks in a short time; and I am sure my system retains its tone longer after the use of these Pills, than has been the case with any other medicine I have tried."-H.
